Name: .... Class: .....

From the time computer games made their way into family homes, parents have wondered if violent video games may _____1_____ affect children and teenagers.

Today, parents still worry about the effects of violent computer games and of course it also _____2_____ a popular topic for the media. However, with a growing number of children and teens spending excessive time playing computer games, perhaps parents should be more worried about teenagers _____3_____ to computer games than the effects of violent video games.

An examination of the literature reveals that those who study video game addiction sometimes disagree on the _____4_____ of children and teenagers addicted to computer games. However, the majority of studies suggest that _____5_____ five to ten per cent of youth who play computer games become addicted.

LIVEWORKSHEETS