READING & USAGE EXERCISE 1: Numbers 16 to 25

Read the texts below about very small houses.

Then do the exercises on page 4.

Could You Live in a 'Tiny House'?

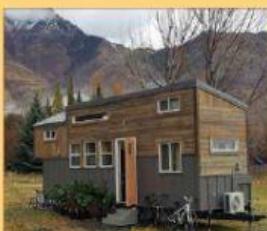

Text
1

A few years ago, people who wanted to protect the environment began thinking about the size of their houses. If they earned more money, they usually bought larger houses. But it takes a lot of stone, wood and plastic to build a big house, and then the house needs more furniture, more central heating and bigger electric fridges, too.

They asked, "What if we can learn to live in small houses? Will that help the environment?" So, a few people tried the idea and liked it, and now the 'tiny house' business is growing.

The idea isn't really a new one. For centuries, Roma people lived in tiny houses on wheels which they moved from place to place. These days, many people have small homes on wheels which they can pull behind their car on holiday trips. These modern ones have just enough things for a family to sleep overnight and cook a simple meal.

A 'tiny house' is like a regular house, with everything you may want or need, in a very small space. It's cheaper and better for the environment. But it's not always easy for four people to live in a tiny space for more than a week or two. Could you do it?

Meet the 'Brown Bear' Tiny House!

2

A family of four can live in it, either for holidays or all year round.

This home is very tiny, only 8.5 m long by 2.4 m wide, but it has three bedrooms. Parents get the big one, over the living room. At the other end, over the bathroom, the kids have two small bedrooms with wardrobes on the wall between them.

Each of the kids has a TV inside a wardrobe door. Their beds are like balloons. They fill them with air every night to sleep on. In the daytime, they can take the air out, fold the beds and put them in the wardrobe. Then they have a soft carpet to play on.

Under the kids' rooms, the bathroom has a basin, a toilet and a full-size shower, but no bath.

In the middle of the home is the kitchen. It has a regular cooker and fridge on one side and a 'breakfast bar' – a shelf with four seats – on the other side, and cupboards everywhere.

The living room has a sofa where two or three people can sit and watch the big TV on the wall. There are more cupboards there for games, books and hobbies.

COMMON ENGLISH MISTAKES

In English, _(26)_ are a number of word pairs that a lot of people use the wrong way. Intelligent people, _(27)_ have studied at university, make these common mistakes. Worse, if _(28)_ writes articles on the Internet, thousands see their mistakes. They look so foolish!

Sometimes, _(29)_ words have very different meanings. Accept and except are often used the wrong way. Accept means to receive: "She accepted the gift." Except _(30)_ for something that's different from the rest: "It rained _(31)_ day except Sunday" means that Sunday was the only day without rain.

Sometimes, the words are different but the _(32)_ is similar. Bring and take both mean to carry or move something. But bring is used when something comes from there to here. Take moves something from here to there. _(33)_, the greengrocer's delivery boy took the food to Mrs. Bling's house. She _(34)_ him and he brought her money back to the greengrocer's.

These are just two of the many mistakes that are easy to make. So, if we don't check our work carefully, nothing _(35)_ save us from looking a bit silly.

45. Part 6

- A. This is a story about a young man, Jim, and his wife, Della, at Christmas.*
- B. So, without telling Della, Jim stopped at a jeweller's on his way to work. He sold his watch to buy Della some lovely combs to wear in her hair.*
- C. What Jim had was a gold pocket watch. His wife, Della, had beautiful, long hair that hung almost to her knees.*
- D. Della decided to serve pork and fried potatoes, with ice cream for dessert.*
- E. That evening, when Jim came home for supper, they realised two things. Their gifts were useless; their love for each other was great.*
- F. Later that day, while Jim was at work, Della cut her hair and sold it to a wig shop. She used the money to buy Jim a chain for his watch. She wanted to surprise him.*
- G. They didn't have much money to buy gifts for each other, but they each had a secret plan. Each also had something that was of great value.*

The result was ironic, not what they had expected. But the story has been a favourite with readers since it first appeared in print, in December 1905.

Learn, Enjoy and Protect the Planet

So, you're not going to camp? Instead, you're the babysitter for little brothers and sisters?
You can do both. Make some camp-like fun of your own! Teach little ones about nature!

Nature's Art Class

The only rule in this class? Your materials have to be Re-used! Try this: Paint a message on an old T-shirt with mud. You'll need some dirt and water, newspaper to mix them on, and a paint brush.

47.

B

Long Walks in Nature

That's right! Get away from the house. Take a 30-minute walk in a local park, an hour by the sea, or a longer walk in the forest. As you go, learn, feel strong and have an adventure. It's also great exercise!

48.

C

Nature Stories

You can keep young kids happy for hours with stories about nature. There are thousands of books in the library. Take your little brother and sister there for a Kids' Hour. A teacher will read them stories while you go and look for a book you'd like to read.

49.

D

E-Learning

You can find lots of activities on the Internet: games, stories, educational videos, quizzes, things to make and more. Learn and have fun at the same time. Look for WWF.org, NASA Climate Kids, Greenpeace and more.

50.

E

Home Science

You don't have to go far from home to help nature. Look closely at plants, watch birds, or count butterflies. Then upload your study and send it to scientists. They'll use it in their studies about the environment. Check SciStarter.com for lots of ways you can help.
