The French call this day 'Mardi Gras', which means 'Fat Tuesday', because they had to use up any fatty food (such as milk, eggs and butter). To do this, they made crepes - thin pancakes which you roll up and eat with sugar. Today they still celebrate Mardi Gras by eating crepes.

In Italy, Shrove Tuesday is called 'Carnevale', which means 'goodbye to meat' and gives us the word Carnival. People eat fritters (special fried pastries), and in Naples they have a pasta dish called Grande Lasagne di Carnevale. The most famous Carnival is in Venice, where people in expensive costumes and handmade masks go to fashionable parties and dances. In New Orleans, USA, the whole carnival season is called Mardi Gras, because it ends on Shrove Tuesday - but it starts on 6 January! There are fancy-dress parties, street parades and food. Traditionally, everyone eats King Cakes, which are round cakes covered in purple, green and gold sugar, with a tiny baby doll hidden inside the cake.
