All's Well that Ends Well

Last summer, my cousin Kendra and I went on a summer camp. On July 10th we arrived at the camp in the Nebraska mountains. It was much bigger than we had expected. First, Kendra and I introduced ourselves to the instructors and the other participants. Then we went to our cabin, where we started unpacking.

6.1. ____ We left the camp without telling anybody where we were going. We walked around and admired the scenery. After an hour we wanted to get back to the camp. However, we were completely lost. We had no idea what to do. I tried shouting loud for help. Unfortunately, there was nobody close enough to hear me. We were getting cold and hungry. 6.2. ____ We were only about three hundred metres from the camp. Yet, it wasn't the end of our problems. While we were walking down a hill, I slipped and fell on the ground. I got up immediately and continued walking. I thought nothing serious had happened, but I was wrong.

6.3. ____ Luckily, my cousin helped me to reach the camp. Everybody had been worrying about us. We felt embarrassed that we had caused so much trouble on the first day.

- A. There was a deep cut in my leg and I was in terrible pain.
- B. At last, after two hours I suddenly recognised our surroundings.
- C. However, my cousin stayed in the cabin.
- D. After we had finished this, I suggested going for a walk.

To: Anna From: Sandra Subject: Re: English language course

Hi Anna,

Yes, I've just come back from my English course in Cambridge, so I now can let you know what it was like.

I joined an intermediate level group, which means that the course was four weeks long. But if your friend wants a course for beginners, it will last two weeks longer. It's the longest course that this school offers.

The accommodation was fine. Actually, I had a choice. I could stay in a room in the school building or at a house with a host family nearby. I chose the first option. My room wasn't very comfortable and I had to share it with a girl from Slovakia. However, it was better for me because it cost very little money.

The course was really hard. We had more than six hours of classes every day. But the school also offered some great free-time activities. I was able to use the school gym and a nearby swimming pool. Also, one weekend, the school organised a couple of trips. On Friday, we visited Stonehenge and on Saturday we had a full day's sightseeing tour of London. Tell your friend that the Friday trip is a must. It was absolutely amazing.

Hope I've helped.

Best wishes,
Sandra
