A WISE CROW

Once there was a crow lived on a tree. There was a snake lived in a anthill under that tree.

The crow laid some eggs in her nest. One day when she was away, the snake climbed up the tree and ate up all the eggs. The crow was very sad. She wanted to get rid of the snake.

One day the crow went to the river side. She saw some rich women, took off their jewels on the bank when they bathe in the river.

The crow picked up a gold necklace and carried it away. The crow went to the snake's hole and dropped into it.

The rich women's servants dug up the snake's anthill. The snake came out. They killed snake and gave the necklace to the women. The crow was happy.
