THE VIKINGS

The Vikings came to England 1,000 years ago. Viking houses were very small. There was only one room in some houses. There was a fire in the middle of the room for cooking and heating. There were holes at the top of the house for the smoke from the fire. There wasn't a lot of room between Viking houses, so the animals were sometimes inside the house. Viking houses were very full!

In the north of England there is a city called York. The Viking name for York was Jorvik. You can learn about life in Viking York at the Jorvik Viking Centre.

At the Centre you can go through a Viking town. You can sit in a special car, called a 'time car' and move along a Viking street and through a Viking house.
