MY WORK EXPERIENCE BLOG

BY MARK WILSON

This is my second week of work experience, and I have another four weeks to go. It hasn't been easy, but I'm so glad I decided to do it. I've already learnt a great amount about the practical side of science, but it's so much more than that. I've travelled a huge distance, made life-long friends from all over the world, improved my communication skills and self-confidence and enjoyed my first taste of living alone!

I graduated from university last year with a degree in Science. I wasn't sure exactly what to do in science after that, but I wanted to work with animals. So when I first saw the advert for this project, I knew it was for me. Jersey, an island off the UK, is a long way away from Hong Kong, where I've lived my whole life. I talked about it with my parents, and I decided to apply. To my surprise, I got in – and by then it was too late to change my mind! I'm earning a bit of money, although I know it isn't a real job. And the project pays for my accommodation, and even the airfare, so it's really quite a good deal. My parents are coming out to join me when I finish and we're going to spend some time sightseeing. I'm looking forward to that because I love seeing new places and meeting new people.

This has been a great adventure for me, and I've discovered a lot about myself – including the fact that a career where I can travel and work with animals would be perfect for me. So the next thing I need to do is to look for a course in wildlife conservation. I can't wait to start!
