A trip to London

Last week, we went on a day trip to London with our teacher, Mr Smith. We're doing a project in our class about London at the moment so it was very useful.

We met outside the school at nine o'clock and the bus came to pick up at half past nine. We arrived in London at midday, just in time for lunch. We went to a big park called Hyde Park to have our lunch because it was such a nice, sunny day. We had sandwiches and bottles of water.

After lunch, we went sightseeing. We used the Underground (or "the tube") to get around the city. First, we went to Trafalgar Square and then we went to Tower Bridge. While we were looking for the Houses of Parliament and Big Ben, we got lost, and Mr Smith had to ask for directions! In the end, we caught a double-decker bus and it took ages to get because there's quite a lot of traffic in London.

At six o'clock, we caught our bus back. We arrived at the school gates at half past eight, and our mums and dads were there. We were all very tired – but we were very happy because it was a great day out!
