How do we write a summary? (Ms. Han' s class)

True or False questions

1. A summary is a developed account of the main points of something.
2. The first step is to read the article.
3. The main points should be rewritten in your own language.
4. There' s usually a one-line introduction to your summary.
5. You can organize the points in a different order than the original text (原文).
6. Some examples for connectives are: Firstly/Secondly/Thirdly, In Addition/Also/Furthermore, Consequently/As a result, Thus/Hence etc.
7. You need to write a conclusion for your summary too.
8. You are going to be marked by your content and your language.

LIVEWORKSHEETS