One day, a big, mighty king wanted to marry his beautiful daughter. Calmly, he approached her and asked her if she would agree. The princess answered shyly that she agrees with him. So, the king started to search tirelessly to find a suiter worthy of his daughter. He only had one condition to whomever will be lucky enough to marry her. He should be brave enough to fight the three evil ogres that live in the cave. Many men tried relentlessly, but they all failed as the ogres were scary except for a brave young man who fought courageously till he killed them all and went to the king proudly to propose. The king agreed that this young man was worthy of his daughter's hand, so he gladly agreed, and both lived happily ever after.
