Happiness

Some people they are naturally cheerful. Others assert that money is the main factor to a happy life. What exactly brings real happiness to our lives?

As a matter of, money is an important factor in our general welfare. It can reduce by giving us economic security. However, if we are not wise, it can make us greedy and foolish. I have met several who are well-off, yet they are bitter and extremely about every single penny they spend. This undoubtedly causes anxiety and will develop emotional and psychological burden in the individual not treated correctly.

Health is another aspect linked with happiness. We believe that if we are healthy beings, we do not anything else. I think it is extremely important to take of our bodies and make sure we acquire the crucial vitamins and nutrients that will help us maintain our strength and vitality since it will also make us improve our attitude..... life.

Nevertheless, in my opinion, I believe that our emotional intelligence is the most necessary factor to create the that we might crave. Little we do with money or health if we do not have a positive outlook life. Enjoying the most trivial tasks as: listening to music, reading a book, or meeting with friends, or simply grateful for the day can make a big in our whole self.

Having all the arguments, it is clear to me that money as as health are factors that will support a positive way of living. However, it is intrinsic as our emotional capability what will definitely ameliorate our well-being and provide us a life.
