

For each question, choose the correct answer

Tony

I was 12 when I started playing the guitar. My parents are classical musicians, so they encouraged me to play the violin when I was five, I think, and piano when I was eight. I certainly picked up some fundamentals from all that. I didn't really care for it at that time. When you're a boy that age, you just want to play with your favourite Star Wars action figures and be a football player pretty much.

David

Well, ever since primary school, I knew I wanted to play an instrument. When I saw the middle school orchestra playing, I knew it was something I wanted to be a part of. The sixth form was the first opportunity I had to start learning an instrument. At first, my band teacher told me to play the trumpet, so I went to the local music shop to try one out. I picked up the trumpet, put it to my lips, and I couldn't make a sound.

Alina

My dad inspired me to start learning classical music, and over the years, I've developed a growing passion for it and decided to move forward with it and pursue it as my career. My piano idol is Frédéric Chopin, a Polish composer full of emotions reflected in his beautiful music. I usually practise after school on weekdays for about an hour, but I sometimes take a few days off. I seem to play better when I return to the instrument.

1. Who loves music written according to traditional forms?
2. Who says they stop playing the instruments from time to time?
3. Who can play two or more musical instruments?
4. Who says that they failed in their first attempt to play an instrument?
5. Who was advised to learn to play a brass instrument?
6. Who says that they learnt basic of music theory at a young age?
7. Who wanted to play in a band with other young musicians?

LIVEWORKSHEETS