

Joann: Oh, are those pictures of your kids?

Artem: Yes. These are my three daughters and these are my two sons.

Joann: Your sons look so alike. Are they similar in _____, too?

Artem: It's funny you ask that. My wife and I are always saying how different they are from one another. Sergey, the younger one, is _____ but _____, while his older brother, Dennis, is _____ and the cheerful kid in town. In my opinion, they are the _____ kids in the block.

Joann: That's really interesting. You know, I have got an older sister and she is _____ of my siblings, but we have very different personalities and physical _____. Her hair is _____ mine and she is much _____. A lot of people say I am _____ attractive because I am only _____ my other siblings. That's not true, I'm just _____ hard-working one.

Artem: It's hard for me to believe that. You are gorgeous. I'm _____ of the family, but _____ talkative my middle brother. He speaks all the time. I don't like he is a little bit stubborn.

Joann: I'm sure you're exaggerating. All people are a little talkative and _____, I think. My cousin is super _____ but he chats when he needs to.

Artem: Oh, what does he look like?

Joan: Athletic like your sister. Every woman says he is the _____-looking guy in college. Well, he's _____ muscular _____ his father already. I bet he attracts a lot of women there.

Atem: cool! He must be really _____ too.
