VII. Read the passage about ecotourism, and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D for each question.

As most potential ecotourist sites are inhabited by ethnic minorities, the principle of “encouraging community participation in ecotourism activities” should both create income and help maintain cultural identity. These communities have a deep understanding of traditional festivals, cultivation and land use customs, traditional lifestyle and handicrafts, and historical places. A trip to the limestone mountain of Cao Bang - Bac Kan, for example, is valuable not only for the Ba Be Lake, but for the opportunity to learn about cultivation customs, dying practices using endemic plants to produce brocading, and traditional handmade boats of precious timber collected in the forest.

Because ecotourism is important for environmental education, maintenance of indigenous culture, and local economic development, both investment and government encouragement are required.

One research shows that 90 percent of ecotourist guides lack environmental knowledge about the flora, fauna, and natural resources in the area, and 88 percent would benefit from ecotourism guidebooks written especially for them. An illustration of wasted potential caused by this lack of training is Ha Long Bay, a world heritage site with immense environmental value - coral reefs, limestone mountains, thousands of flora and fauna species of high biodiversity, and rich cultural identity. But tourists in Ha Long Bay are presently visiting only the Bay and some caves, not accessing environmental information or local cultural activities. In general, the full potential of ecotourism has not yet been reached.

International visitors to Viet Nam often like to visit ethnic minority villages to observe the culture, meet local people, and participate in traditional activities. The ethnic minorities who live in or near nature reserves maintain distinctive lifestyles, cultural identities, and traditional customs. These features are part of the real value of ecotourism. However, local people are not much involved in ecotourism.

In addition, local people still live in poverty, their life closely associates with natural resources. The economic benefits of ecotourism need to be shared with them, but this will not happen without community participation.

Câu 36. An eco tour to the region of ethnic minorities is very valuable because tourists _____.

- A. can make a trip to the limestone mountain of Cao Bang - Bac Kan
- B. can learn dying practices using endemic plants to produce brocading
- C. can make traditional boats of precious timber collected in the forest
- D. can understand the aspects of cultures and traditions

Câu 37. Ecotourism can bring all the following benefits EXCEPT _____.

- A. maintaining cultural identity
- B. providing opportunities to learn about traditional customs
- C. establishing more national parks and nature reserves
- D. introducing cultures of ethnic minorities to foreign tourists

Câu 38. Tourist guides who lack environmental knowledge can't _____.

- A. make tourists access all environmental information or local cultural activities

- B. take tourists to Ha Long Bay, a world heritage site with immense environmental value
- C. get ecotourism guidebooks written especially for them
- D. make ethnic minorities have a deep understanding of their traditional festivals

Câu 39. In order to develop ecotourism, local communities should _____.

- A. depend on natural resources
- B. take part in all aspects of ecotourism
- C. change their distinctive lifestyles
- D. share the economic benefits of ecotourism
