Levi Strauss came to California in the 1850s during the Gold Rush to make clothes for the miners. He knew that they would wear (A1) ... their clothes very quickly, so they made them out of canvas, which was used at (A2) ... time to make tents. Later, he replaced the canvas (A3) ... denim, a softer fabric originated from the city of Nimes in France. In Europe this fabric was known as "serge de Nîmes" and because of (A4) ... way it was pronounced, it came to be known as denim in America. Strauss began to dye the miners' pants blue do that strains would not show and this colour increased their popularity. To achieve (A5) ... snug (облегающий) fit, cowboys would soak them in water, then put them (A6) ... and lie (A7) ... the sun to shrink (A8) ... material as it dried.
