My name is David. I live in an apartment in Canberra, the capital of Australia. It is a big city with a lot of buildings, banks, supermarkets and shops. There are trafic jams during rush hour. It is very noisy and things are expensive. At the weekend, I usually visit my grandparents in a village, far from the city. They live in a large house with a garden. The village has not many buildings, shops and things are much cheaper. There are a lot of sheep on the farms. The villagers are very friendly. I prefer living here because life in the village is more peaceful than life in the city.
