Mrs. Clark has just opened a letter, and she has received bad news. She has lost her job! For the past year she has worked as a private secretary for a rich musician. Now the musician has decided to stop working, and he has asked Mrs. Clark to find another job. Mrs. Clark is the only money earner in the family, since her husband is no longer living.

The letter has upset Mrs. Clark very much. She's crying. She has recently bought a new house, a new car, and many new clothes for her job. She has not paid for them yet. Now she may not be able to pay for them because she has not saved much money.

Sarah has heard the bad news, but she really doesn't understand much about the money. She's more worried about her mother. Mrs. Clark has never cried in front of her daughter before.
