VIII. Read the passage and choose the best answer.

Air pollution can affect our health in many ways with both short-term and long-term effects. Different individuals are affected by air pollution in different ways. Some individuals are much more sensitive to pollutants than others are. Young children and elderly people often suffer more from the effects of air pollution. People with health problems such as asthma, heart and lung diseases may also suffer more when the air is polluted. The extent to which an individual is harmed by air pollution usually depends on the total exposure to the damaging chemicals.

Examples of short - term effects include illnesses of eyes, nose and throat, and upper respiratory infections such as bronchitis and pneumonia. Other symptoms can include headaches, nausea, and allergic reactions.

Long - term health effects can include chronic respiratory disease, lung cancer, heart disease, and even damage to the brain, nerves, liver, or kidneys. Continual exposure to air pollution affects the lung of growing children and may complicate medical conditions in the elderly. It is estimated that half a million people die prematurely every year in the United States as a result of smoking cigarettes.
