

ON THE CRIME SCENE

Listen to the conversation and fill in the blanks with the appropriate words (or numbers).

- Hello, I'm Amy Jones and this is Duncan Frost. We're with the _____.
- Good morning officers. I'm Julie Logan. I'm a private _____. What can you tell me about the crime scene ?
- Well... the victim is a _____-year- old man, Brian O'Neil. He was _____ in the head during the night of February _____th at around 11 pm. There was a gun line next to his corpse when we _____ on the crime scene this morning.
- What do you know about the victim so far?
- Brian _____ as a journalist in a London _____. He was _____ to Meghan, who is an English teacher. The thing is... Meghan has mysteriously disappeared. We've no idea where she is. No one _____ into the _____, the entrance door was wide open when we arrived, papers and newspaper _____ were scattered everywhere.
- Hmm... I see. No one broke into the apartment? Strange. And there are _____ going from the body to the entrance door and _____ everywhere...
- Yes, there are. We have to gather more evidence and analyse the apartment and the _____. We may find suspicious _____.
- Ok. Well... thank you officers. I imagine you're going to question the neighbours next?
- Exactly. We want to know if the neighbours _____ or _____ anything out of the ordinary.
- Alright. Let me _____ what you find out next.