WEDNESDAY

We're continuing our week in Amsterdam. Mum and Dad have gone to the Rijksmuseum, and we've just returned to the hotel from the Van Gogh Museum. It was modern and interesting. I liked the painting of his shoes, but Clara says the picture of the yellow house is her favourite. We've also been to a huge street market, where we bought some souvenirs.

THURSDAY

We've been up since seven o'clock this morning because we've been on an excursion to visit a real windmill. It was made of wood and was really pretty on the outside, but full of spiders' webs on the inside. It was really old, but it still worked! We had lunch in a little town before coming back to the city. (Did you know the Dutch have mayonnaise with their chips?!)

And this afternoon we went for a walk in one of the big parks. I've never seen so many flowers!

FRIDAY

Tomorrow's our last day here. This morning we went to see Anne Frank's house, because I read the book at school last year and I wanted to see it for myself. It made me think about how lucky I am. Anyway, we're eating out tonight at an Indonesian restaurant, so tomorrow's blog post will be about exotic food!
