Fashion Blogging Dos and Don'ts

Many fashion lovers spend hours a week trying on clothes, matching outfits to high heels and creating new looks. Often, they take pictures of themselves and post them online, hoping to be admired by all of their friends. However, what is just a hobby for some can turn into a career for others.

"I've always been attracted to fashion," said Hannah Lawson, a young blogger from London, "but when I started sharing my favourite looks online, I discovered the benefits of being a fashion blogger". Hannah told us that even a teen fashion blogger could get free products and earn money from blogging.

Do you think you've got what it takes to be a fashion blogger? We asked five successful bloggers for their best tips for beginners:

Tip 1: Find your speciality: Second-hand, designer labels, or smart inexpensive clothes – whatever it is, stick to it. Eva Pat, a fashion blogger from Berlin, said that after she had developed a unique style of her own, that's when people had started to show interest in her blog.

Tip 2: Take good pictures: Take good pictures: It sounds obvious, but if what you're wearing doesn't look good on camera, no one will want to buy it. Aaron Haxley from Chicago explained that bloggers had to use a good editing photo program to get the best results.

Tip 3: Post often: Post often: Natasha Huntington from Cambridge gave the example that one time she had missed posting for two weeks and she had immediately seen fewer followers.

Tip 4: Plan your content in advance: Plan your content in advance: Natasha added that she was always on the lookout for new items to keep people interested.

Tip 5: Interact with your followers: Kevin Kelly from Denmark said that his audience had made him successful, so he always tried to answer their comments and respect their opinions. He explained that it could take a lot of time, but if you did just a little bit every day, it would add up and be worth it.

Tip 6: Promote things you really love: Camille Bardot from Paris said that the secret was to only show things you wanted in your own cupboard. "If I don't want it, I don't promote it," she said.

a. "I've decided to take photography lessons," said Mark. – Tip ....

b. "I already know what I'm going to write about over the next month," said Sarah. – Tip ....

c. "A new designer wanted me to post about his clothes, but to be honest, I didn't like them," said Andrew. – Tip ....

d. "My blog is all about fashion accessories," said Lucy. – Tip ....

e. "Every evening, I send replies to the new messages on my blog," said Chris. – Tip ....
