

Unit 10: The past, present and future - Lesson 1&2

* * *

Name:

Class:

1 What did we learn today

Vocabulary	Grammar	Skills
History events, the present and future	Review present, past and future tense	- Talk about the past, the present and the future - Read and fill in the blanks

2 Let's Practice

Exercise 1: Read and complete the sentences. Write no more than 4 words

The swan is the biggest water bird in Britain. It is the second largest bird in the world, after pelican.

Swans eat water vegetation, insects and small fish. Swans can live for about 20 to 30 years. Swans from the North part of the Earth are white but those from the South are mixed black and white. The Australia are completely black.

They are highly intelligent, they can remember who has been kind to them or not. They can become very aggressive when someone makes them angry. In 2001, a man in Ireland had his leg broken by a swan when he was trying to make it angry.

A swan will mate for life. A male swan is called a cob, and a female one is called a pen. Swans build their nests on land out of twigs and leaves. A pen lays between 3 and 9 eggs. A baby swan will hatch out of their eggs after over a month. A baby swan is called a cygnet.

Some naturalists reported that one of the very first swan found on the Earth was the giant extinct swan called Cygnus falconeri which lived from 781 000 to 126 000 years ago. The Cygnus falconeri was even taller than the dwarf elephant which now lives in Borneo Island in Indonesia.

- is the biggest water bird in the world?
- A swan's life span is
- Swans are highly intelligent but
- A man in Ireland when he was trying to make a swan angry.
- A female swan lays each time.
- A cygnet hatches out of its eggs after
- One of the very first swan was which lived ago.
- The extinct giant swan was the dwarf elephant.

Exercise 2: Katy was telling a story about the competition that she participated in. Read about the competition in your student's book page 78 and complete it.

Last week, I participated in a competition at school named Question Time. There were competitors, me, David, Helen, Robert and Mr. Jones was the MC. He asked us questions about

He started the competition with a question about for me. I know that they are now I thought they are tall, but actually the biggest one was tall. I was surprised with this.

Then he asked about the history of telephone. David knew that was who first invented the telephone in He was very confident about his answer.

The next question was for Helen. It was about "which is the biggest water bird in Britain. Helen answered it is, but she was not very sure about it.

The question for Robert was about... He got the correct answer and he knew that all of insects have got six leg, too.

After that Mr. Jones asked Harry a question about baby lions. He wanted to know if a baby lion has got spots or stripes on their fur. Harry replied immediately that

All of us got the same scores, so he asked one more question about That was my favorite part because I was the only one who gave the correct answer.