Hunters kill animals because they want their skins, their tusks or their horns. They make souvenirs, jewelry, coats, bags and shoes. Elephants, rhinos and leopards are endangered. Some crocodiles, snakes, lizards and tortoises are also endangered. Some ocean animals have beautiful shells. People make jewelry from these shells, too. We can help these animals. The souvenirs are beautiful, but think about the animals and ask questions before you buy. Ask: "Is this crocodile skin?" or "Is this rhino horn?" Don't buy things made from endangered animals.
