- 7 Read the article. Choose the correct heading 1–5 for each paragraph. Write the NUMBER in the gaps.

- 1 What the research tells us
- 2 Common signs of depression
- 3 Changes people can make to their homes
- 4 Different regions, different weather, same effect
- 5 The medical advice

In many Asian countries, the reduced amount of sunlight during the rainy season can make people feel depressed. People in Europe can also feel unhappy during the autumn and winter months because they don't see much sun. The difference between the two places is that the rainy season doesn't last as long as autumn and winter.

Scientists have tried to learn which people suffer most from depression related to the weather. After studying the problem, they found that it is more common for females to feel depressed than males.

Nobody knows why people become depressed because of the weather, but doctors know what problems they can sometimes have. People want to sleep more and generally feel that they have no energy. They also want to eat more and so can put on weight.

Doctors recommend that people eat a healthy, balanced diet and get plenty of exercise. Thinking positive thoughts also helps people to feel better about themselves. All of these things will be of great benefit to your body and mind.

Using bright colours also makes a difference. Colours such as red, orange and yellow make us feel more alive. This can help us feel more energetic and likely to do some physical activity. Blue, grey and black, however, make us feel heavier and slower. This is something people should think about when they are choosing colours for their walls.
