Are you interested in the news? Would you like to work in broadcasting? Three young people talk about their hopes for the future.

Ellie: I'd love to be a TV newsreader. I think it's a really important job, because as a newsreader you can help people to understand what's happening in the world. I'm especially interested in international news. I think the BBC is the best news channel, so maybe I'll work for them one day.

Sam: I want to be an audio engineer. If I pass my exams this year, I'll go to college next year and study sound engineering. I'll learn how to mix the sound to get the best sound quality. I'd love to work in a recording studio and help musicians record their songs. Maybe I'll even meet some famous singers!

Noah: I'd like to be a news reporter. I already write articles for my school newspaper, usually about local news. I'd like to go to university and study journalism. My dream job is to work for the BBC and travel all over the world to report on the news.
