

Name _____

Class _____

Careers and Vocations – Matching Activities

Public Service

Healthcare

Education

Entertainment

Finance

	Careers in this sector are all about helping people stay well. The people who work in this field are often very caring and more sympathetic than most other people.
	The people who choose this type of career are natural-born performers. They like attention and don't mind when all eyes are on them. Usually, they are more outgoing or less shy than people in other vocations.
	Professionals in this field follow the numbers. They use logic and critical thinking to help people manage their money. Normally, these people are best at maths, and tend to prefer it to science or languages.
	People working in this sector want to help make their communities a better place. They are hardworking and helpful. Often, they will look out for the well-being of others before themselves.
	Individuals who choose to work in this field have a passion for learning. They are caring, friendly people, who want to help others reach their full potential. They have heavy workloads and work long hours.

Bankers	Pharmacists	School counsellors	Nurses	Accountants
Comedians	Police officers	Government workers	Teachers	Radio hosts

_____ work every day of the week. Even though they have weekends off, many educators still spend 40 to 60 hours preparing for their lessons. They make a greater effort because they find their career very rewarding. After all, they spend their days helping students develop themselves.

_____ spend their shifts trying to make people laugh. They are always looking for the funniest jokes to keep the crowd entertained. Very successful comics often have their own TV shows.

_____ are good with money, but even better at maths. They do best with balancing accounts and making sure that their clients use their money wisely. It may not seem exciting, but it is very rewarding!

_____ have a great job that lets them help people, but also have a social life. They usually work regular business hours, which can be a very big perk. They are often very busy during their shifts making sure their customers get all their medicine!

_____ protect and serve. They work hard to make sure the people in their community are safe and will do whatever it takes to help them. They can often find themselves in dangerous situations. Because of this, they are some of the bravest workers in the field!

_____ work the same shifts as teachers. Even though their workload may seem lighter, they often put in a similar amount of hours. Working with all the students in the school keeps them busy, especially when they spend more time helping struggling students.

_____ love to talk, and luckily, they have a vocation that lets them! They spend their shifts talking to their audiences to bring people together and develop a sense of community.

_____ handle lots of money every day. The amount of money varies based on the size of the branch where they work, but even a small bank can have two million dirhams in its building each day! They have many important tasks that make sure their clients' money is safe so they can rest easier and not worry. It can be stressful, but it is good work.

_____ have a very rewarding job. They take care of many people in the hospital and look after all their patients' needs. Because of this heavy workload, many people think that they are the hospital's hardest workers.

_____ work to improve their communities. There are lots of public sector jobs, so each one can focus on its own specialty. Often, a government office has over a dozen different departments—each with very different teams! Many of their projects are on tight deadlines, which means they have to work harder and quicker to meet them.