

The Romanisation of the Iberian Peninsula

After the conquest, people in Hispania began to adopt Roman culture and customs. They began to speak Latin, the Roman language. They adopted Christianity as their religion. They follow Roman laws. The legacy of the Roman Empire and parts of their culture still exist today.

They built many infrastructures:

- aqueducts to receive and transport water
- theatres, amphitheatres and circuses for entertainment
- baths for hygienic purposes
- roads and bridges for transportation

Join these Roman infrastructures to their names bridge

bath

road

aqueduct

theatre