Homes of the Future

Kylie Mayer is planning a big exhibition for people who are shopping for houses. She says that in as few as five years, all new houses will have computers in them. Smartphones will have an app that connects to the house computer and monitors all the rooms. You will be able to talk to your house with your smartphone!

You’ll be able to change the temperature in different rooms and even tell your washing machine when to wash your clothes. You won’t need to get up to open and close curtains, set the alarm clock or see who is at your door.

Your bed will know how long you have slept, and it will give you advice on how to sleep better. Your refrigerator will be online, too, so it will be able to order more food when supplies are running low.

You won’t need to worry about your garden needing water or your dog having food. Your house will be your janitor, cook and secretary. It will be smart enough to do everything for you.

- 6 Kylie Mayer is an architect.
- A Right                      B Wrong                      C Doesn't say
- 7 Only very expensive houses will have smart computers in them.
