

My Tiring Routine

Read the following text and complete the chart below

Hi! I am Stephanie. I have a tiring routine every day. I have to divide my days doing things in my house, taking care of my family, working, and studying. On Mondays, I wake up at 5:00 am to clean the house and prepare my kids for school. After that, I go to work from 8:00 am to 4:00 pm. Then, I pick up my kids at school. I get home and prepare dinner for my family. Then, I connect to my classes from 7:00 to 9:00 pm. After that, I study and do my college tasks. I go to bed until 11:00 pm. I repeat the same routine every Tuesday and Wednesday.

Thursdays are different because I don't have classes, but I have to work still. So, after I finish work and pick up my kids, I take them to the park and we go for ice cream. Then, I get home and watch a movie with my family. Fridays are very tiring for me because I have three meetings at work and I always have to work extra hours, so I finish work at 6 pm. Then, I have to help my kids with their homework and I have to study because I have a quiz every Saturday. On Saturdays, I don't have to work, but I have to connect to classes from 4:00 to 7:00 pm. I also take the chance on Friday mornings to do laundry, fold the clothes, and take out the pets. Sundays are very relaxing for me because I don't have to work or connect to classes, so I just spend time with my family, watching movies, going out, or practicing any sport.
