MAN VS HORSE MARATHON

Do you think you know everything about marathons? Well, think again. In Wales, there is a famous race called the Man vs Horse Marathon. It started in 1980 and it takes place in the countryside. In this race, people compete against horses. The course is about 22 miles long and the competitors have to go over steep hills, across rivers and through forests. It is easy for a man to go through a thick forest, but a horse has to go around the forest. The aim is for a man to beat the first horse and competitors have to be very strong to do it. People can race on foot or ride a bicycle. In 2004, a man racing on foot won the race for the first time. He trained hard to take part in the marathon and he won a big prize.

KITESURFING

Are you looking for a new water sport? Then try kitesurfing. It is another extreme sport that lots of people love. It started at the end of the 1990s and it soon became popular on almost all the famous beaches around the world.

Kitesurfing is like kiting and surfing together. People stand on a board and hold a kite bar. When they hit the first wave, their body flies about 40 feet into the air and then they crash into the water. It is a lot of fun, but it is also dangerous. To do this sport, people have to spend a lot of time training and practicing. They also have to learn how to avoid accidents and what to do if an accident happens.
