Burger Time

Reese was famished! It was nearly two o'clock, and he had not eaten since breakfast. Reese asked his mom if she would stop at a fast food restaurant on their way home from his baseball game. She rolled her eyes and shook her head. His mother absolutely loathed fast food, but with over 300,000 fast food restaurants in the United States, she found it hard to avoid them. They were everywhere!

Reese's mother reluctantly agreed to indulge her son with a fast food lunch, but on the way to the restaurant she tried to explain to Reese the importance of a healthy diet. She had always been a healthy food fanatic and knew a lot about foods. She explained to Reese that although fast food is convenient to order and very tasty, it often contains excessive fat and calories. Reese agreed that a diet of only hamburgers and fries would be unhealthy, and he promised to definitely eat a variety of nutritious foods as well.

While at the restaurant, Reese's mother began to talk about some of the strange and unusual foods eaten by people around the world. In China, for example, some restaurants serve bird's nest soup made from the nests of swallows. Reese was not aware that in Columbia moviegoers may purchase paper cones filled with fried ants as a snack. He was relieved that theaters in the United States served popcorn instead of fried ants. His mother also told him about fugu, a special kind of fish served in Japanese restaurants. If not prepared correctly, fugu can be highly toxic. Those who cook it must be specially trained, so the diners do not get sick or die from their meal. Much safer meals included the horse-meat sandwiches served in restaurants in the Netherlands and the grilled guinea pig enjoyed in South American countries. As his mother was explaining how Scottish cooks prepare haggis, a boiled sheep stomach stuffed with oatmeal, Reese began to feel nauseated and asked her to please stop talking until he had finished his lunch.

Looking at Reese's pale face, his mother took pity on him and promised not to talk about any more strange foods. She did remind him, though, that just because the food was different from what he was used to eating, it was not necessarily bad. In fact, the people in other countries enjoy their food as much as Reese enjoyed fast food. Reese agreed that was probably true, but now all he wanted to enjoy was an ice cream cone for dessert.
