

|                                     |      |            |             |                 |
|-------------------------------------|------|------------|-------------|-----------------|
| When the waiterfinally arrived, |      |            |             | The restaurant. |
|                                     | left | The guests | Had already |                 |

|     |          |        |     |            |                        |
|-----|----------|--------|-----|------------|------------------------|
| She |          |        |     | The floors | Before sheslipped. |
|     | Finished | Almost | had |            |                        |

|                           |      |   |       |     |            |
|---------------------------|------|---|-------|-----|------------|
|                           |      |   |       |     |            |
| Until I went toParis, | Been | I | Never | Had | To France. |

|                          |         |     |         |            |                 |
|--------------------------|---------|-----|---------|------------|-----------------|
|                          |         |     |         |            |                 |
| By the timeHe was 32 | Started | Had | Already | Bill Gates | His own empire. |

|     |         |         |        |     |      |                       |
|-----|---------|---------|--------|-----|------|-----------------------|
|     |         |         |        |     |      |                       |
| hit | The car | the bus | Hadn't | It. | seen | Because thedriver |