

Martin: You've got a big family, Sonya, haven't you?

Sonya: Well, Martin, there are six children altogether and I'm twenty and the oldest.

Martin: Wow! I know Vivienne, of course. She had her fifteenth birthday last month, didn't she?

Sonya: That was Sally. Vivienne looks older but she's two years younger – but you mustn't say I told you she's only thirteen!

Martin: Of course I won't. Well, my little sister's seven ...

Sonya: ... and she plays with my brother Roger.

Martin: So they must be the same age.

Sonya: They are. Then there's my other little brother, Frank.

Martin: And how old is he?

Sonya: He's two years younger than Roger.

Marlin: So he's only five. There must be someone else.

Sonya: ... Oh, Deborah! I nearly forgot.

Martin: Isn't she eighteen and starting at college in September?

Sonya: Yes, she's going to study medicine. She's wanted to do that since she was ten.

Martin: What a nice family!
