The Hadza are the last full-time 1) -gatherers in Africa. They live a simple, stress-free life in much the same way as they have for thousands of years. They have no jobs or money and they don't even have the same 2) of time as we do. They wake up, they hunt or 3) honey, they eat and they sleep – they don't really have a need for time. The Hadza live in 4) settlements throughout the Yaeda Valley in Tanzania. They have few possessions and are 5) . Despite the fact that they are the second oldest group of people in the world, they have 6) almost unchanged over the years and have not been 7) by the outside world. They continue to roam the valley and 8) and sing.

Do you think the Hadza will be able to continue their simple life for many more years?
