

SYNTACTIC ANALYSIS

Abbreviations:

S: Sentence. It is the first part of the analysis and it encompasses all the structure.

S1 & S2: Sentence1 & Sentence2. These abbreviations happen when there is more than one verb.

- They could happen in coordinative sentences (the sentences are independent)
- They could happen in subordinate sentences (the sentences are dependent so, S2 is inside S1)

NP: Noun phrase. The second part of the analysis. This phrase has a noun or pronoun as its core. The first noun phrase in a sentence is usually the subject of it.

Det: Determinant. Usually found in a NP.

N: Noun. The core of a NP.

Pron: Pronoun. Usually found in a NP.

AP: Appositive phrase. This usually is inside a NP and its function is to say information about the noun that is before it.

AdjP: Adjectival phrase. When the core of the phrase is an adjective. It is usually found inside a NP because the main function of an adjective is to give information about a noun.

Adj: Adjective.

VP: Verb phrase. The second part of the analysis together with NP. This phrase has a verb as its core.

V: Verb. The core of a VP.

CP: Complementizer phrase. It is usually found within a VP and its function is to complement the word that precedes it.

C: Complementizer (that). It's the head of a CP.

AdvP: Adverbial phrase. When the core of the phrase is an adverb. It is usually found inside a VP because the main function of an adverb is to give some information about a verb.

Adv: Adverb.

PP: Prepositional phrase. When the phrase begins with a preposition.

P: Preposition.

Mod: Modifier. These words modify the whole meaning of the sentence.

Conj: A word that joins two actions, things, persons...together.

Adju: Adjunct. A thing added to something else as a supplementary word rather than as an essential one.
