Vacations are an escape from all the screens in your life, but you'll probably post photos and videos about your trip on social media, right? So why not get paid for it?

A vacation company, Luxury Vacation Homes, is looking for applicants for a job where you can get paid to travel all over the world for three months. Your task? Well, you have to stay in 12 luxury vacation homes and share your experiences on social media. Not too tough, right? Although it's only a temporary job, the company pays $10,000 a month and covers all travel expenses!

The company describes the position as "the best job on the planet." And I can see why. You can take your friends with you (but they can't come for free) and you can choose your own itinerary.

To apply for the job, make a one-minute video explaining exactly why you're the best candidate for the best job on the planet. You don't have to make a professional video, but you have to send it to Luxury Vacation Homes before March 30.

The bottom line: now might be a good time to drop everything and work on your application video. Get ready for an extended vacation. Best of luck.
