PUSS IN BOOTS

PÁGINA EVALUADA POR EL PROFESOR

Puss' plan was not yet over.

He ran ahead of the King's carriage and said to everybody on the road, "If the King asks you who you work for, you must say that you work for the kind Marquis of Carabas."

So, when the King and the miller's son came by, all the workers waved and cheered. "Hail the Marquis of Carabas!" they said.

They told the King, "We work for the noble Marquis of Carabas! He owns all this land."
