

Organize the pictures from 1 - 9 in chronological order.

Match the pictures to the description.

- ___ His operation is believed to have saved over 14 million lives.
- ___ Alan's closest friend, whose name was Christopher, died of bovine tuberculosis.
- ___ Alan confessed his biggest secret to Joan, and this is believed to be the reason why they called off their engagement.
- ___ Alan started working day and night as a coping mechanism to deal with his sorrow.
- ___ He died a year later, his death was ruled as a suicide by poisoning.
- ___ He started to work as a codebreaker on Nazi's secret codes.
- ___ Turing proposed marriage to his mathematician colleague Joan Clarke, who was also a fellow cryptanalyst, in 1941.
- ___ The woman who exchanged letters with him after the terrible loss was Christopher's mother.
- ___ He was convicted accused of having a different sexual orientation

RELATIVE CLAUSES

Complete the sentences with the correct pronoun.

People who knew a lot about computers were considered brilliant back then.

Code-breakers were those whose jobs consisted on decoding secret messages announcing bombings.

Hut 8 was a section that was tasked with solving German naval Enigma messages.

Bletchley Park is the mansion where the allies experts on code-breaking used to work.

The reason why they created section Hut 8 was to prevent war attacks.

Read the sentences written with some changes, check with a tick those that are grammatically correct and re-write those

Delilah was Alan's project which worked as a portable secure voice.

.....

People where worked with computers were called computer scientist.

.....

He was born in Maida Vale, which is located in London, and raised there too.

.....

His first love, who died at 19, was his inspiration.

.....

He graduated at King's College, who he obtained a degree in mathematics.

.....

Drag and drop each sentence where it corresponds.

His illness started when he drank infected cow's milk.

This is the woman who exchanged letters with him.

Apples, which also happened to be his death, were his favorite and he ate one daily.

Her graveyard, which is in the same place as her son's, states that she died on February 25th 1941.

He wanted to marry someone that could keep his secret without judging him.

She accepted his proposal which ended short after.

He was buried in The Clock House, where his mother was buried as well.

She was a cryptanalyst, who also worked during WWII, and his colleague.