

Preview

CULTURE

Many people in the United States and Canada celebrate their birthdays with a party. These parties can be dinner parties, dance parties, or just parties where people have snacks and chat with one another. Typical snacks at parties include chips and dip, cheese and crackers, nuts, cookies, and other snacks that people eat with their fingers.

Are birthday parties common for adults as well as for children in your country?

What kinds of foods do you often have at birthday parties?

