

What are the stages of a person's life? First, you are born, you get older and then you leave home to go to university or work or whatever. After some time you get married, find a stable job, work until you retire and then die. A bit depressing, when you think about it...

I warned him! He was engaged to a beautiful, charming lady- but Steve being Steve, a friend of hers saw him talking a bit too intimately with another girl, and when she heard she cancelled the wedding. He realised what he had lost and spent the next few weeks calling her and telling everybody how unlucky he was. Incredibly, I've heard they're back together again!

An old schoolmate of mine was caught trying to rob a bank in daylight, with everybody in the queue! He was sent to prison, but after just 2 months he jumped out of the window onto the top of a lorry. The police are still looking for him, and I'm telling everybody: "I used to sit next to him in class!"

Our trip to the beach was a disaster! We left early, but even then there was a lot of traffic and we were later than usual when we got into Cornwall. Then the car stopped and we were waiting by the side of the road. We phoned gran, and grandad came and picked us up, and so everything went well after that.

I'm like my dad in personality, although if you look at me you would say I am more similar to my mother. Anyway, my dad is always correcting me, and saying I should or shouldn't do something, but I still admire him!

We had to postpone my parents' wedding anniversary, because my mum caught flu. Dad took care of her for some 10 days until she got better, and then we had a great party with all their friends!

I used to be really good friends with Brian, but when he inherited a fortune it seems that he wasn't the person I had thought he was. He just ignored me and all his friends. He really disappointed me- I expected him to buy me a car, at least!

Sometimes when a small problem occurs you can avoid it without too much effort, but bigger problems have to be investigated and analysed properly before they get solved.

I really don't know why I like football sometimes! In a match against our local rivals, our top striker decided to respond to the referee in a bad way. The referee was running away, but he stopped, went up to the player and gave him the red card! After that the team didn't even try to win - they just surrendered: 4- 0! I'm going to switch to rugby...

Friends! It's OK when you ask them to visit you, but when they just appear without warning it can be depressing. Obviously, you're not going to tell them to leave!
