

Author's Purpose

Get PIE'D in Author's Purpose!
 P ersuade	the author tries to convince the reader of something	article about how to help save an endangered animal
 I nform	the author gives information about a topic	nonfiction book with animal facts
 E ntertain	the author writes something the reader will enjoy	fiction book with characters plot, etc.
 D escribe	the author uses some of the senses to tell about a topic	essay about the sights, sounds, & smells of a favorite place

Read the descriptions or examples below to determine the Author's Purpose.

Vertebrates are animals that have a backbone inside their bodies. Vertebrate groups include fish, mammals, reptiles, amphibians and birds. Invertebrates are animals without a back bone inside their bodies. Some invertebrate groups are insects and spiders.

Persuade	Inform
Entertain	Describe

One warm afternoon, while walking home from school, Arianna glanced at her neighbor's house and noticed Mrs. Spencer lifting a fluffy kitten from a cardboard box. The words "Free Kittens" were written across the side of the box in large, black letters. Rosie squealed with excitement and ran home to tell her parents.

Persuade	Inform
Entertain	Describe

Students should have at least 30 minutes of breaktime during a school day. After all, students shouldn't be expected to sit all day! Furthermore, students don't feel as antsy and can focus more easily after they run around and play.

Persuade	Inform
Entertain	Describe

Trinity heard a noise coming from your backyard. She looked outside her bedroom window, to her surprise she saw a magical horse that could talk and fly. She ran outside and started to ask if she can get a ride and the horse said with a bright smile "hop on and let's glide through the skies".

Persuade	Inform
Entertain	Describe

My mom decided to take me out for ice-cream night at Lickety Split. As we walked in the sweet aroma knocked us right in our face. We were excited to see all the different colours of ice-cream; red, yellow, brown and even black. When I tasted the superman ice-cream I couldn't speak. I just moaned "MMMMmmmm".

Persuade	Inform
Entertain	Describe