IT IS A STOMACHACHE

A. SITUATION: A person is calling due to a health problem he/she is having. Listen and practice the conversation with a partner.

A: What seems to be the problem?

B: Oh, my God! It's my stomach. It's killing me!

A: Where does it hurt the most?

B: Right here! It hurts right here!

A: How long has it felt like this?

B: I felt OK when I woke up, and then, suddenly, I had this really sharp pain.

A: Do you have a history of stomach pain?

B: No, and I haven't done anything out of the ordinary.

A: I think that we are going to have to get you to an emergency room right away.

B: Thank you for helping me.

THE EMERGENCY ROOM.

B. Situation: After being assisted, the patient calls to the emergency room to ask if they could drive him/her to the Emergency room.

A: Sorry to bother you, but I was wondering if you could drive me to the emergency room.

B: Of course. What is the problem?

A: I am running a really high fever of 105 degrees, and I have a rash on my stomach.

B: If you can, go and unlock the back door, so I can get in when I get there if you fall asleep.

A: I can do that when I get off of the phone.

B: Do you know where your driver's license and insurance card are?

A: I already had them out before I called you.

B: Where is your nearest emergency room?

A: It's just a few blocks away.

B: Fine, I am on my way. I'll be there in about five minutes.
