WORLD CAR-FREE DAY

All over the world on 22nd September drivers are asked to leave their cars at home and move around the city by other means of transport. The event is called World Car-free Day and the main idea is to make people realise how much we depend on cars in our daily lives.

During World Car-free Day, large parts of all the cities taking part in the event become traffic-free areas. Less often, street parties and parades are also organised to show people what their cities might look like without cars. Some cities also hold bicycle demonstrations to encourage people to use this green and healthy means of transport.

The event has both its opponents and enthusiasts. The first like to point out that nothing can change our driving habits. 'People will always use their cars to go to work or do the shopping', they say. 'Perhaps not', say the enthusiasts. 'If we make people realise that they can use their cars less and less in the city, our battle is won.'

3.1. What always happens in a city that organises World Car-free Day?

- A There are different events organised in the streets.
- B Cars can't enter some parts of the city.
- C Bicycle runs are held to promote this way of travelling.

3.2. The last paragraph presents

- A the environmental advantages of World Car-free Day.
- B the problems caused by organising a car-free event.
- C different points of view on the idea of a car-free day.

From: Peter
To: Kimberly
Hi Kim,

Sorry I haven't written for quite a while but I've been busy. As you know I joined a bicycle club a few months ago and now we're helping to organise World Car-free Day in our city. It's the first time it's going to be held here and the organisers want it to be really huge and memorable. Our club is actively taking part in the whole thing. All of our members have been given tasks to do for the event. One group will make a bicycle parade in the city's streets (I'd really prefer to be in that one!). Mine, though, will be responsible for organising places all over the city where people can rent bicycles for the day for free. At least I won't need to distribute the promotional materials which sounds quite boring.

Anyway, there will be lots of things going on in the city during the event. My sister's dance group is going to give some street performances. There's also going to be a demonstration organised by a local environmental group.

I really think a car-free day is an amazing idea. What do you think?

Write back,

Peter
