

Listen to the audio as many times as you need to, and then fill in the blanks.

Rebecca: Alright, so Gareth, who's your _____ friend?

Gareth: Ah, _____ question, but I would have to say that my _____ is my best friend.

Rebecca: You're wife, so then _____ did you meet?

Gareth: We met in _____ when I was eighteen. My wife was twenty-one, and we met at _____.

Rebecca: At the university really. So why are you _____ good friends?

Gareth: I think because we can _____ true _____. With some of my friends I tend to _____ a little bit _____. I don't necessarily, _____ all of _____ to them, so with my wife I can tell her that I'm _____ or _____ or _____ or _____ and we can talk about a lot of stuff, and I feel very _____ and yeah, just _____ with her.

Rebecca: That's really nice. What do you guys _____ do together?

Gareth: We like _____ and TV shows. We're really _____ American TV shows and we just _____ watching Lost. It's an American TV show that _____ _____ for quite sometime, like six years, and we watched it from the very _____ and we just watched the last _____ and we like TV shows. We also have two _____ so most of our time is spent playing with them. _____ . We like to _____ a lot, so we often travel back to my home-country, England, and my mom's _____ in America at the _____ so we're _____ to visit her for Christmas.

Rebecca: _____ like a lot of _____.

Gareth: Yeah, it is. Definitely.

Rebecca: So then, the _____ question: do you guys ever fight?

Gareth: Oh, yeah. Of course, yeah, but that's the good _____ about it. It's _____ after the fight that's important. So it doesn't _____ that we fight and I think that most _____ early on tend to avoid _____ and they tend to _____ stuff _____ inside, but then if you do keep that _____ you'll end up resenting the _____ for it, so I think it's _____ to give your _____ and that's what my wife and I do. We often tell each other when we're _____, and the _____ why and we _____ it and we often fight and sometimes it gets _____, a heated argument, but then we make up and it's good. It makes us _____. It makes up realize what _____ the other so.

Rebecca: So you can _____ them in the _____.

Gareth: _____, yeah.

Rebecca: Sounds really _____. That's really great. Thank you very much.
