THE VAIN CROW

A crow thought she _____ (1) very beautiful. One day she sat on a branch _____ (2) a tree. She had a piece of cheese in her mouth, which she had taken from a farmer's _____ (3). At the foot of the tree a fox was sitting. The fox saw the piece of cheese in the _____ (4) mouth and wanted to have it. So he got up and spoke to the crow.

"I'm very glad to see you, _____ (5) friend," he said. "You look very beautiful today."

The crow sat quietly on her branch and said _____ (6), but she was very pleased.

"You are so beautiful that you could be our queen. Can you talk? I am sure your _____ (7) is very beautiful, too."

The crow still said nothing, because she still had the cheese in her mouth and did not want to drop it. The fox was silent for a moment, then he said, "Oh, I see. You can't talk. Well, we can't make you our queen if you _____ (8) talk."

Now the vain crow wanted to show that she could talk, so she opened her mouth and cried, "Caw, caw!" The piece of cheese fell _____ (9) on the ground. The fox ran to it and ate it up. The foolish cow looked sadly at him from her branch. And the fox laughed.

"My dear friend," he said, "now I see that you have a voice, but there is something _____ (10) important that you haven't got - brains."
