

What type of boss do you work for? Tick one.

Type 1: My boss always needs it now!

'Haven't you finished it yet? Hurry up!'

Type 2: My boss needs it today.

'Sorry, but can I ask you if you've finished it yet?'

Type 3: My boss needs it sometime this week (or next).

'You haven't finished it? No problem.'

Presentation

Negative questions

You can ask questions using the negative form of the verb:

Haven't you finished it yet?

You often use negative questions to:

- show surprise or annoyance: Haven't you finished it yet? You've been working on that report for hours.
- suggest something: Why don't you work late tonight?
- request something (often impolite or expecting a negative response): Can't I finish it later?
- check information or something you think is probably true: Isn't the deadline for this report next Friday?
- exclaim something: Don't you work long hours!

When you use negative question forms for exclamations, you use an exclamation mark (!) not a question mark (?).

Indirect ways of asking questions

You can use certain expressions to make questions less direct. They often make the questions more polite or more tentative:

Have you finished it yet? → Can I ask you if you've finished it yet? (more polite and less direct)

Common expressions to ask a question indirectly:
Can/Could I ask you if...? Can/Could you/anyone tell me...? Do you know/remember...? Do you have any idea...? I don't know/'d like to know... I wonder/was wondering...

After the expression, the word order is the same as an affirmative sentence (subject before the verb):

I was wondering if you've finished it yet. (not I was wondering if ~~have you~~ finished it yet.)

With yes/no questions, use if/whether:

Can I ask you if/whether you've finished it yet?

With object questions, do not use an auxiliary verb (do, does, did) in the present simple or past simple:

Do you have any idea what time she wants the report? (not Do you have any idea what time ~~does she want~~ the report?)

Statements as questions

You can make an affirmative sentence into a question by using rising intonation at the end. This type of question often shows surprise or checks information:

*You haven't finished it? What have you been doing? [↗]
 (= This has taken longer than I expected.)*

A: The office is open on Saturday? [↗] (= I'm fairly certain, but I want to check.)

B: That's right, but only until midday.
