Last December, it snowed a lot. One Saturday, when John and a group of friends were playing with a sledge on a hill near their homes, John suddenly fell and broke his leg. It hurt a lot! His friends were really worried and one of them ran quickly to tell John's parents. An ambulance soon arrived to take John to hospital.

Poor John had to stay in hospital. The nurses and the other children there were friendly and kind so, at first, John didn't mind. He didn't have to go school or do lots of homework and exams like his friends did! He just listened to music, played chess and other games on his phone and watched his favourite football team scoring lots of goals on TV. But when the Christmas holidays started, John began to feel quite bored and a little unhappy.

But then Peter Windows, a member of John's favourite football team came into his hospital room! He was carrying a Christmas tree and a bag that was full of exciting presents. And he wasn't alone! John's best friends followed Peter into the room.

John began to feel much happier and very lucky! He was really surprised when his head teacher arrived, too! He also brought John a wonderful present – some Math's and Art homework! “Make sure you do it all before you come back to school, John!” he laughed.
