LIVEWORKSHEETS

A selection of tonight's television programmes

A Mission Moon
This interesting documentary tells us about the early history of space travel, through the words of the people who were most closely involved with it – scientists, technicians and the astronauts themselves.

B Our Living World
Scientist Sven Bergström describes some practical ways we can all stop damaging the environment. He focuses particularly on the rainforests, home to many types of wildlife which are in danger of disappearing, and considers how to protect the unique nature of these areas.

C The Voyage
The Voyage is set in the distant future, in a time when people from Earth can travel to far-away planets in other parts of the universe. Don't miss the battle scene at the end – it's got some amazing special effects. The perfect way to escape from reality for the evening!

D The Life of Charles Darwin
This is a very well-made documentary about the nineteenth-century scientist Charles Darwin (1809-1882). It describes his journey to the Galapagos Islands and his studies of the birds and animals there, and explains how he first began thinking about the origins of life on earth.

E Going Green
This is one of the funniest comedy shows on TV. It's about a family, the Greens, who do some very funny things in an effort to look after the environment. The actors work so well together you almost believe they're a real family. Tonight they try some crazy ways of saving energy.

F Captain Lacy
This series, based on an eighteenth-century novel, follows the exciting adventures of a brave sea captain as he sails from one continent to another. Captain Lacy has everything – love, war, politics, danger, beautiful scenery and some great costumes. It also gives you a wonderful view on the society of that period.

G Circus Stories
If you want to relax and have a good laugh this evening, watch this! This series is about Chuck and Daisy MacKay, who looked after elephants in a circus in Canada in the 1950s. The couple, now in their 80s, talk about their experiences in a highly entertaining way.

H Discovering Asia
Follow explorer Roberta Mazzi as she crosses the Asian continent, all the way from Turkey to China. In each region she spends time among the local people, learning about their culture and way of life. This is a fascinating and very informative programme.
