

Food. Eating out

1) A person who doesn't eat meat.

2) A person who doesn't eat any kind of animal produce, such as butter, eggs, milk or even honey.

Guess the dishes of different national cuisines.

- a savory red-coloured soup whose ingredients are minced beet, carrots, potatoes and other vegetables. It always garnished with sour cream. It's eaten with pampushky, small rolls rubbed with garlic.

- is a dish of millet cooked in meat soup; lard, onion and garlic are added to the dish before it can be served.

- is stewed pork and potatoes (to which mushroom or vegetables can be added). It's served in a clay pot.

- dumplings filled with cabbage, potatoes, mushrooms, etc...

- is a long, thin, cylindrical pasta of Italian origin. It's served with mushroom and tomato sauce and cheese.

- traditional Spanish dish born in Valencia, the main ingredient of which is rice. It may be accompanied with meat, vegetables and seafood.

- a traditional Hungarian main course whose ingredients are beef with sour and sweet sauce and vegetables.

Fill in the table with words from the box

Pizza, tomato, omelette, burger, chicken, drinks, potato, snacks, roast chicken and potatoes, fish, starters, chocolate cake, cheese, drinks, main courses, rice, German sausage and chips, grilled fish, lemon, desserts, French onion soup, cream, lunch, chicken salad, dinner.

Food	Dish	Course Meals / Meals

Order the sentences in these dialogues

- Yes, we are ready to order our main course. I'd like some meat. What can you recommend?
- French fries, please. Can we have some vegetables as well?
- What will the lady have?
- Are you ready to order your main course?
- All main dishes are served with carrots, peas, broccoli and French beans.
- She'll take a steak.
- O.K. I'll take the loin.
- We have very good pork.
- Will you have roast potatoes or French fries with your main course?
- Good. Thank you.

- One tea and two coffees.
- Yes. Your order, please, one tea, one double espresso and one filter coffee.
- Which coffee would you like: espresso, cappuccino or filter coffee?
- Will you have any chocolate with coffee?
- With sugar and milk?
- No milk, please. Just sugar.
- One double espresso and one filter coffee.
- No, thank you. Just coffee.
- Next, please.

Reading

a regular customer постійний відвідувач, a pint міра вимірювання рідини, близько 0,5 літра

PUBS

The word "pub" itself is an abbreviation of a "public house" which sounds dull and unemotional. Pubs are very dear to the British people, being a peculiarly English institution.

Pubs are famous for their friendly and cosy atmosphere. For many English people the pub is still the centre of their social life.

People come to pubs to meet their friends, talk sports, play darts, watch television or just relax and enjoy themselves. They come here to have a good time.

On the other hand, many business people go to a pub for a quick drink after work and "talk shop" before going home.

There are pubs everywhere in England. A small town of, say, 50,000 inhabitants will have between 50 and 100 pubs, each with its own character. Even a small village usually has its pub.

The country pub is the heart of village life. Some of them have there for hundreds of years. There is a fire-place in winter, and you can sit out in the garden in summer. They are welcoming places, with their regular customers usually only too happy to talk to the visitor.

The oldest pub in England is "The Trip to Jerusalem". They say it was built in the 12th century.

Pubs are part of the British history and that's what makes them unique.

Naturally they have a lot of traditions and regulations. Most pubs open at 11 a. m. and close at 11 p. m. Young children cannot go into a pub until they are 14, but even at this age they should be accompanied by an adult.

The minimum age for drinking alcohol is 18. It is illegal to sell tobacco to anyone under the age of 16.

Pubs sell not only beer and wine but food too. There is now a huge range of bar snacks, and lunches — usually fried fish or sausage and chips, or steak, or the so-called "Ploughman's lunch" which is a large piece of cheese, some bread, some pickles, and an onion.

When you order food you are expected to have at least one drink as well. If someone buys you a drink, he will usually expect you to offer later to buy one for him (even if you are not having another drink yourself).

If a friend bought you a drink yesterday and you go to a pub together again today, you should start by saying:

"Now, it's my round. What are you having?"

There are three main kinds of beer: lager (a light coloured beer), bitter (ordinary English beer, which is darker and heavier than lager) and mild (darker and sweeter).

In case you don't know the names of the beer in a particular pub, you can say: "A pint of mild, please". Or "A half pint of lager, please". Or "Another bitter, please".

1. Pub is a shortened form from public house.

a) True                      b) False

2. The British adore their pubs.

a) True                      b) False

3. People go to pubs to enjoy friendly atmosphere and relax.

a) True                      b) False

4. You can find pubs only in the UK.

a) True                      b) False

5. Pubs are the centre of social life in Britain.

a) True                      b) False

6. The British discuss sport events, play games, talk with friends in pubs.

a) True                      b) False

7. All pubs in any town are alike.

a) True                      b) False

8. Every village has its pub, which is the heart of village life.

a) True                      b) False

9. There are very old pubs in England, some are several hundred years old.

a) True                      b) False

10. Pubs are unique, as they are the part of the British history.

a) True                      b) False

11. The oldest pub was founded in the 12th century.

a) True      b) False

12. There are regular visitors in any pub.

a) True      b) False

13. Pubs are closed until 10 a.m.

a) True      b) False

14. Pubs close at midnight.

a) True      b) False

15. 12-year old teenagers are allowed to visit pubs.

a) True      b) False

16. 14-year olds can visit pubs without grown-ups.

a) True      b) False

17. Young people under 18 can not buy alcohol in pubs.

a) True      b) False

18. Tabacco can be sold to 16-year old teenagers.

a) True      b) False

19. Pubs don't sell food.

a) True      b) False

20. Pubs offer their customers lots of snacks and even lunches.

a) True      b) False

21. If you order some food, you should buy a drink too.

a) True      b) False

22. If someone buys you a drink, you must buy him a drink next day.

a) True      b) False

23. There are only two main kinds of beer in the UK.

a) True      b) False

24. The British measure beer in litres.

a) True      b) False