Leaving home

Going away to university is always tricky time, both for the students who are leaving home and parents who are staying behind. We got advice on to cope from a student daughter and her dad.

A daughter's advice to parents, by Kerry Price

My parents drove me to uni the beginning of the first term. That was great, but then they hung around, so it was hard to chat to the people in the rooms near mine. It's best you leave us to unpack ourselves.

Don't ask us to come home during term time. There's a lot going on at weekends, there just isn't time.

Get another interest or a pet if you feel lonely us. Don't make us feel guilty about leaving home!

It is quite interesting hear about your experiences at uni, but remember that it was a LONG time ago, so don't go on about it so much. Things have changed a lot. Now we have a great more debt and it'll be harder to find a job in the future.

Please don't check up on us or our friends Facebook. I know it's a public site, but we have the right to some privacy.

Don't change anything in our bedrooms. We have only half left home - we'll be back in the holidays, so please don't touch anything.

We'd still like to come family holidays with you. Don't forget to include us just because we're not there all the time.

A father's advice to students, by Stuart Price

Don't complain so much how much work you have to do. We work a lot too. You're an adult now, get used it.

Put with the fact that we refused to get a dog while you were at home, then suddenly bought one as as you moved out. We miss you!

Just because you're at university studying very complex subjects, it doesn't mean that you're more intelligent than everybody else. Don't treat your family if they were stupid; we're really not.

Let us come and visit you now and again. We promise to try to embarrass you in front of your friends. We just want to see you for a short time and take you out for a meal.

Don't waste so much time on Facebook. You need time for all that work you have to do, remember?

We might a few changes to your room, so deal it. It's great to have a guest room at last, but we won't change things too much, promise.

Don't forget to call home from time time and don't get annoyed if we phone you. It's not pestering. If we didn't call, you know that we care.
